ACCT 402. CPA Prep: Financial Accounting and Reporting (FAR)
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer
Prerequisite(s): Accounting Major or Minor Students.
Fee: An additional $45.00 is charged for this course.
Description: Financial Accounting and Reporting (FAR) is one of three core CPA Exam sections required of all CPA candidates. FAR focuses on the financial statements for both for-profit companies as well as not-for-profit organizations. That includes topics like SEC reporting and earnings per share; financial ratios and performance metrics, both calculating them and interpreting what they mean; deep dives into balance sheet accounts like cash, receivables, investments, payables, and equity; and a wide range of financial transactions like revenue recognition, accounting changes, and fair value measurement. Data and technology concepts: verifying the completeness and accuracy of source data used to prepare financial statements; using various sources of information to prepare supporting schedules for account balances.
